I have practiced corporate and transactional business law for many years. Much of my practice has involved technology-oriented companies. I have negotiated and assisted in negotiating many business transactions. I have focused on assisting my clients in determining if they want to pursue various business transactions. If so, I assist them in finding common ground with the other parties to the transactions and then document those transactions. I have also helped resolve many business disputes, including difficult disputes among owners of closely held companies. Due to the nature of my practice, I routinely use many of the skills used by successful mediators.
